

ECDC NORMAL

Benjamin Bluemel is a physician and works at the European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control (ECDC) as expert in the Section Sexually transmitted infections, Blood borne viruses and Tuberculosis. His work focuses on hepatitis C prevalence surveys in EU/EEA countries and on STI surveillance activities at EU/EEA level including coordination of the European Gonococcal Antimicrobial Surveillance Programme together with colleagues from other institutions (until recently with UKHSA and Örebro University Hospital). Dr. Bluemel is a physician specialised in clinical microbiology and trained in field epidemiology in the German Field Epidemiology Training Programme (FETP).